Extract from the SPEECH of EDMUND BURKE, esquire, on moving his resolutions for CONCILIATION with the colonies, on the 22d of March, 1775.

THE following are some of the arguments made use of by this very able speaker in favour of a conciliation with the mother country and her colonies.

IF we mean to conciliate and concede, let us see of what nature the concession ought to be: To ascertain the nature of our concession we must look at their complaint. The colonies complain that they have not the characteristic mark and seal of British freedom. They complain that they are taxed in a parliament in which they are not represented. If you mean to satisfy them at all, you must satisfy them with regard to this complaint. If you mean to please any people, you must give them the boon which they ask; not what you may think better for them, but of a kind totally different. Such an act may be a wise regulation, but it is no concession; whereas our present theme is the mode of giving satisfaction.

Sir, I think you must perceive that I am resolved this day to have nothing at all to do with the question of the right of taxation. Some gentlemen startle; but it is true; I put it totally out of the question; it is less than nothing in my consideration. I do not indeed wonder, nor will you, sir, that gentlemen of profound learning are fond of displaying it on this profound subject. But my consideration is narrow, confined, and wholly limited to the policy of the question. I do not examine whether the giving away a man's money be a power excepted and reserved out of the general trust of government; and how far all mankind, in all forms of polity, are intitled to an exercise of that right by the charter of nature; or whether, on the contrary, a right of taxation is necessarily involved in the general principle of legislation, and inseparable from the ordinary supreme power? These are deep questions, where great names militate against each other; where reason is perplexed; and an appeal to authorities only thickens the confusion. For high and reverend authorities lift up their heads on both sides; and there is no sure footing in the middle. This point is the great Serbonian bog, betwixt Damiata and Mount Casius old, where armies whole have sunk. I do not intend to be overwhelmed in that bog, though in such respectable company. The question with me is, not whether you have a right to render your people miserable; but whether it is not your interest to make them happy? It is not, what a lawyer tells me, I may do; but what humanity, reason, and justice, tells me, I ought to do. Is a politic act the worse for being a generous one? Is no concession proper, but that which is made from your want of right to keep what you grant? Or does it lessen the grace or dignity of relaxing in the exercise of an odious claim, because you have your evidence room full of titles, and your magazines stuffed with arms to enforce them? What signify all those titles, and all those arms? Of what avail are they, when the reason of the thing tells me, that the assertion of my title is the loss of my suit; and that I could do nothing but wound myself by the use of my own weapons.

Such is stedfastly my opinion of the absolute necessity of keeping up the concord of this empire by a unity of spirit, though in a diversity of operations, that, if I were sure the colonists had, at their leaving this country, sealed a regular compact of servitude; that they had solemnly abjured all the rights of citizens; that they had made a vow to renounce all ideas of liberty for them and their posterity, to all generations; yet I should hold myself obliged to conform to the temper I found universally prevalent in my own day, and to govern two millions of men, impatient of servitude, on the principles of freedom. I am not determining a point of law; I am restoring tranquillity; and the general character and situation of a people must determine what sort of government is fitted for them. That point nothing else can or ought to determine.

My idea therefore, without considering whether we yield as matter of right, or grant as matter of favour, is to admit the people of our colonies into an interest in the constitution; and by recording that admission in the journals of parliment, to give them as strong assurance as the nature of the thing will admit, that we mean forever to adhere to that solemn declaration of systematic indulgence.

Some years ago, the repeal of a revenue act, upon its understood principle, might have served to shew, that we intended an unconditional abatement of the exercise of a taxing power. Such a measure was then sufficent to remove all suspicion, and to give perfect content. But unfortunate events, since that time, may make something further necessary; and not more necessary for the satisfaction of the colonies, than for the dignity and consistency of our own future proceedings.

I have taken a very incorrect measure of the disposition of the house, if this proposal in itself would be received with dislike. I think, sir, we have few American financiers. But our misfortune is, we are too exquisite in our conjectures of the future, for men oppressed with such great and present evils. The more moderate among the opposers of parlimentary concession freely confess, that they hope no good from taxation; but they apprehend the colonists have further views; and if this point were conceded, they would instantly attack the trade laws.

These gentlemen are convinced that this was the intention from the beginning; and the quarrel of the Americans with taxation was no more than a cloke and cover to this disign. Such has been the language even of a gentleman (Mr. Rice) of real moderation, and of a natural temper well adjusted to fair and equal government. I am, however, sir, not a little surprized, at this kind of discourse, whenever I hear it; and I am the more surprized, on account of the arguments which I constantly find in company with it, and which are often urged from the same mouths, and on the same day.

For instance, when we alledge, that it is against reason to tax a people under so many restraints in trade as the Americans, the noble lord (lord North) in the blue ribband, shall tell you that the restraints on trade are futile and useless; of no advantage to us, and of no burthen to those on whom they are imposed; that the trade to America is not secured by the acts of navigation, but by the natural and irresistible advantage of a commercial preference.

Such is the merit of the trade laws in this posture of the debate. But when strong internal circumstances are urged against the taxes, when the scheme is dissected; when experience and the nature of things are brought to prove, and do prove the utter impossibility of obtaining an effective revenue from the colonies; when these things are pressed, or rather press themselves, so as to drive the advocates of colony taxes to a clear admission of the futility of the scheme; then, sir, the sleeping trade laws revive from their trance; and this useless taxation is to be kept sacred, not for its own sake, but as a counterguard and security of the laws of trade.

Then, sir, you keep up revenue laws, which are mischievous, in order to preserve trade laws that are useless. Such is the wisdom of our plan in both its members. They are separately given up as of no value, and yet one is always to be defended for the sake of the other. But I cannot agree with the noble lord, nor with the pamphlet from whence he seems to have borrowed these ideas, concerning the inutility of the trade laws; for, without idolizing them, I am sure they are still, in many ways, of great use to us; and in former times they have been of the greatest. They do confine, and they do greatly narrow, the market for the Americans. But my perfect conviction of this does not help me in the least to discern how the revenue laws form any security whatsoever to the commercial regulations, or that these commercial regulations are the true ground of the quarrel, or that the giving way in any one instance of authority is to lose all that may remain unconceded.

One fact is clear and indisputable: The public and avowed origin of this quarrel was on taxation. This quarrel has indeed brought on new disputes on new questions; but certainly the least bitter, and the fewest of all, is on trade laws. To judge which of the two be the real radical cause of the quarrel, we have to see whether the commercial dispute did, in order of time, precede the dispute on taxation: There is not a shadow of evidence for it. Next, to enable us to judge whether at this moment a dislike to the trade laws be the real cause of quarrel, it is absolutely necessary to put the taxes out of the question by a repeal. See how the Americans act in this position, and then you will be able to discern correctly what is the true object of the controversy, or whether any controversy at all will remain: Unless you consent to remove this cause of difference, it is impossible, with decency, to assert that the dispute is not upon what it is avowed to be. And I would, sir, recommend to your serious consideration whether it be prudent to form a rule for punishing people not on their own acts, but on your conjectures. Surely it is preposterous at the very best. It is not justifying your anger by their misconduct, but it is converting your ill-will into their delinquency.

But the colonies will go further. Alas! alas! when will this speculating against fact and reason end? What will quiet these panic fears which we entertain of the hostile effect of a conciliatory conduct? Is it true that no case can exist in which it is proper for the sovereign to accede to the desires of his discontented subjects? Is there any thing peculiar in this case to make a rule for itself? Is all authority of course lost when it is not pushed to the extreme? Is it a certain maxim that the fewer causes of dissatisfaction are left by government the more the subject will be inclined to resist and rebel?

All these objections being, in fact, no more than suspicions, conjectures, divinations, formed in defiance of fact and experience, they did not, sir, discourage me from entertaining the idea of a conciliatory concession, founded on the principles which I have just stated.

By the OCEAN, captain OWEN, just arrived, we have received the following advices.

LONDON, May 26.

YESTERDAY morning, about ten o'clock, a courier arrived in town from lord Grantham at Madrid with dispatches relative to a disagreement between the courts of Lisbon and Madrid.

Confirmation is said to be received that the armaments in Spain are designed against the dominions of Portugal.

They write from Madrid that his catholic majesty had given orders to press one man out of six of all his subjects without distinction directly, as two powerful armies were wanted, one in America, and the other in Europe.

Notwithstanding all conjectures to the contrary, the armaments making by the Spaniards, if there be any truth in the accounts of them, can never be destined against Gibraltar or Jamaica. Six thousand horse can neither be deemed proper or necessary to traverse the WOODS and GULLIES of the latter, much less will they be suited to clamber the rocks of Gibraltar. Ireland, beyond dispute, if they have any designs against the British crown, must be the place, and a fairer opportunity cannot present itself than now, when that island is in a manner stripped of its troops by the great reinforcements lately sent to America.

They write from Jamaica that a man of war belonging to admiral Gayton's squadron, which had sailed for Carthagena to demand some English prisoners at that port, had been roughly treated, being fired at by some Spanish men of war there, and obliged to return without any satisfaction. It is added, in consequence of the above proceeding, that the admiral, with his whole squadron, was sailed for Carthagena, to insist on satisfaction for the insult offered to the flag of Great Britain.

We are informed, from very respectable authority, that orders were on Saturday night last sent from the admiralty office to Portsmouth and Plymouth for two ships of 50 guns, and two of 60, to be fitted out immediately.

A squadron of men of war, completely manned, with six months provisions on board, are constantly to be kept at Spithead during the summer, to sail on the shortest notice wheresoever occasion may require.

Orders are issued for the guardships at Plymouth to take on board their full complement of seamen and marines with all possible speed.

Several houses of rendezvous are opened in Wapping, and the adjacent parts, for entering sailors for his majesty's service.

We hear that orders are sent down to Scotland for the officers to fill up their regiments to the full complement of men as soon as possible.

Lord Rochford having asserted in the upper house that the merchants in Spain were not apprehensive of the very great preparations and armaments going forward in the seaports of that kingdom being intended against Britain, it is but right to inform the public that a very intelligent English merchant has written several letters to his correspondent in London, in the most positive terms, that there is no doubt but the Spaniards intend to go to war with us. He says, that throughout the Spanish nation, particularly among the sailors, there is an eager wish, and strong expectation, for a war with England.

Politicians seem greatly puzzled with regard to the destination of the Spanish armament. The reports of its being against the Moors, or the Sicilian rebels, are certainly without foundation.

A letter by the last mail from Cadiz informs us that they have a report there that the Spanish fleet is intended to act in two divisions, one to sail for the chief port of the emperor of Morocco, in order to oblige him to agree to such terms as may put it out of his power again to molest the Spaniards; and the other to bombard Algiers, the corsairs of which state have been lately very insolent, and have even carried off some Spanish fishermen who were fishing on the Spanish coast in the Mediterranean.

By authentic letters from Cadiz, of the latest date, we are assured that six regiments of foot, and one of horse, were just arrived there for embarkation.

A correspondent observes that no surer proof can be given of the hostile intentions of the court of Spain against Portugal than the political force of obliging ships coming from Lisbon to the ports of Spain to perform quarantine; for he assures us that the matter of a Lisbon trader, lately arrived in the port of London, declared yesterday upon Change that there is no epidemical distemper either at Lisbon, or in any of the harbours contiguous to it: The whole purport of the Spanish orders, therefore, is to prevent the Portuguese inspecting their naval preparations, and intelligence at home concerning its destination.

Saturday morning an express arrived from Copenhagen, but not in consequence of the queen of Denmark's death; some important national business is said to have caused it.

A privy council is summoned to meet at St. James's to-morrow, said to be on affairs relative to the plantations.

Orders are sent to all the out ports to prevent the exportation of copper coin to any part of the American colonies, except on government account.

The inhabitants of Virginia have raised by subscription the sum of 2000l. to be expended in purchasing gunpowder. Various accounts received, by private letters, and otherwise, declare their intention of abiding in the determinations of the congress, except the late acts respecting them are repealed, which they yet hope will be effected.

Accounts received at Whitehaven, by the Trail, captain Peele, in five weeks from York river, Virginia, mention the great apprehensions which prevail through the whole continent with regard to the negroes. Several insurrections have been attempted in different places; the planters are distressed beyond measure. Several of the conveniencies, and even necessaries of life, are very scarce. The negroes, it is positively asserted, are almost naked; that, with some other disagreeable circumstances, it is imagined, stimulate them to such desperate attempts. In York town, a strict patrol is kept every night, and any negro found in the street is confined till the next day. The like cautions are observed in other towns.

A letter by the above vessel says that most of the people in the middle rank are secretly murmuring at the proceedings of the associators, and if nothing material happens before winter, that season will be severely felt by thousands.

A messenger was sent off yesterday morning for Copenhagen with a packet, which he is expressly ordered to deliver into the king of Denmark's own hands.

It is said the Danish ambassador at this court has received letters of recal.

On Saturday a messenger was sent from lord Rochford's office with dispatches for the regency of Hanover, relative to the interment of the late queen of Denmark, which, it is said, will be in the royal vault at Herenhausen, where king George I. lies interred.

Extract of a letter from Chatham, dated May 17.

"There are now great disturbances with the shipwrights, who are employed on task work in building his majesty's ship Formidable, of 90 guns, in this dockyard. Eighty shipwrights employed by task on the said ship requested yesterday that they might have the liberty of working in dinner time, which was refused by their officers, it being out of their power to grant them that favour. In consequence of the said denial, they assembled together in the afternoon, and forced themselves in a body out of the yard gate. This morning they came into the yard, but would not work, and in the afternoon they stayed away.

"This afternoon there were likewise about 100 more of the task gangs, who absented themselves from the yards, which makes, in the whole, 180. It is feared that there will be a discharge among them, and the consequences are much dreaded here. An express on the above affair was dispatched this evening to a certain board."

The secretary of the admiralty is gone to Chatham to enquire into the complaints of the shipwrights, and the cause of their leaving off work, in order to accommodate their disputes.

A gentleman, just arrived in town from Paris, says, the day before he left that place nine revenue officers were seized and conveyed to the Bastile, but the nature of their offence was not publicly known.

They write from Paris that the East India company is going to be re-established under the immediate protection of the king, and to commence business the ensuing season.

Extract of a letter from Philadelphia, dated April 10.

"We have just received the sanguinary addresses of the lords and commons respecting the colonies, which has surprized, but not disconcerted us. We are utterly at a loss to judge what could have occasioned so great a difference and change of manners in so short a time.

Violent measures will unite us to a man. I have not observed the least despondency; on the contrary, I have no doubt but force would have been repelled by force, and notwithstanding the difference attempted between the New England and other colonies, it would have effected no dis-union. The southern colonies, by which I mean all south of New York, would have spurned at a distinction which they must have enjoyed with infamy.

The greatest preparations are making in New England, and we are resolved here that they shall not want any supplies of money, provisions, &c. which we can furnish them with. There are hundreds in this city who will spend their plate at the first word; and the moment blood is spilt there is an end of all remittances.

We look on our situation as very dreadful; but we are not dismayed. It is the firm determination of thousands to spin the term of freedom to its utmost length, and never to survive the ruin of their country."

As lord Chatham was driving to the house of lords on Wednesday, the horses which drew his carriage took fright, and ran with such impetuosity, that before they could be stopped the carriage was much damaged, and his lordship so much hurt as not to be able to attend the house.

As we have already been informed of the noble, spirited conduct, of the earl of Effingham, in resigning his commission into his majesty's hands, on learning that his regiment was ordered for America, the following abridgment of his lordship's speech in the house of lords, on the motion to receive the New York memorial, cannot but prove acceptable.

My Lords,

WHATEVER has been done by the Americans I must deem the mere consequence of our unjust demands. They have come to you with fair argument; you have refused to hear them. They make the most respectful remonstrances; you answer them with pains and penalties. They know they ought to be free; you tell them they shall be slaves. Is it then a wonder if they say, in despair, "for the short remainder of our lives we will be free!" Is there any one among your lordships who, in a situation similar to that which I have described, would not resolve the same? If there could be such a one, I am sure he ought not to be here.

To bring the history down to the present scene: Here are two armies in presence of each other; armies of brothers and countrymen; each dreading the event, yet each feeling that it is in the power of the most trifling accident, a private dispute, a drunken fray in any public house, in Boston; in short, a nothing, to cause the sword to be drawn, and to plunge the whole country into all the horrors of blood, flames, and parricide.

In this dreadful moment, a set of men more wise and moderate than the rest, exert themselves to bring us all to reason. They state their claims and their grievances; nay, if any thing can be proved by law and history, they prove them. They propose oblivion, they make the first concessions. We treat them with contempt; we prefer poverty, blood, and servitude, to wealth, happiness, and liberty.

What weight these few observations may have I do not know; but the candour your lordships have indulged me with requires a confession on my part, which may still lessen that weight. I must own I am not personally disinterested.

Ever since I was of an age to have any ambition at all, my highest has been to serve my country in a military capacity. If there was on earth an event I dreaded, it was to see this country so situated as to make that profession incompatible with my duty as a citizen.

That period is, in my opinion, arrived; and I have thought myself bound to relinquish the hopes I formed, by a resignation, which appeared to me the only method of avoiding the guilt of enslaving my country, and embruing my hands in the blood of her sons.

When the duties of a soldier and a citizen become inconsistent, I shall always think myself obliged to sink the character of a soldier in that of the citizen, till such time as their duties shall again, by the malice of our real enemies, become united.

It is no small sacrifice which a man makes who gives up his profession; but it is a much greater when a predilection, strengthened by habit, has given him so strong an attachment to his profession as I feel. I have, however, this one consolation, that by making that sacrifice I at least give to my country an unequivocal proof of the sincerity of my principles.

May 27. By letters from Koningsberg, of the 12th instant, we received yesterday an account of a dreadful fire, which happened on the 10th instant at night. Many hundred houses were consumed, and the damage is computed at two millions of dollars, besides a great loss of all kinds of merchandize.

Prince Repnin, who was taken prisoner in the late war, died at Moscow a few days ago.

A plan of conciliation is said to be laid in such a manner as to be not only honourable to the mother country, but acceptable to the colonies; they are on their part to make some concessions, and the new acts of course are to be dormant.

The following advice was yesterday received from Cadiz by a merchant in the city: "We have now here a fleet of at least 130 sail, large and small, with infantry and horse on board, ready to sail with the first wind. They are intended, it is said, to join a squadron at Carthagena, but to this moment the destination of this armament is a secret."

Extract of a letter from Hamburg, dated May 16.

"It should seem as if the spirit of revolt was contagious all over Europe, as we learn from Frankfort that there has been a great rising amongst the peasants in Bavaria, on account of the want of corn. These poor creatures shewed the greatest signs of despair, declaring if they did not receive immediate assistance they would deliver themselves from the burthen of their lives before the eyes of the elector. This prince has promised them immediate relief."

Extract of a letter from Paris, dated May 18.

"Letters from Bourdeaux import that the Spanish fleet, consisting of 500 sail, having on board 18,000 foot, and 1000 horse, had put out to sea on the 30th of last month, under the escort of eight ships of the line, three frigates, three bomb ketches, and two fire-ships. These letters add, that they still continue working in the ports of Spain, on the armaments preparing there."

Extract of a letter from Vienna, dated May 7.

"It is computed that there are yet 20,000 peasants dispersed in the mountains of Bohemia. The court hath published a new ordinance in that kingdom, fixing the feudal service of the peasants to their lords."

Since Monday last 24 lieutenants from half-pay list have been called upon to do duty on board the ships of war now fitting out at Chatham and Portsmouth.

There is at this time said to be at least a million of silver coin in the bank, ready to be issued when the bad money in circulation shall be called in."

Account of the SPANISH SEA and LAND FORCES, taken by Mr. Swiss in 1773.

One ship of 114 guns, and 1200 men; eight ships of 84 guns, and 800 men each; fifty of 74, and four of 60 guns; eight frigates of 40 guns; twenty frigates of 30 guns; eight xebecs, and seven gallies, each of 4 guns and 110 men; which are, in all, about one hundred and six vessels. A list of the army was printed at Madrid in 1773: Three companies of life guards; a company of halberdier guards; a regiment of Spanish infantry guards, and one Walloon infantry; each regiment consisting of six battalions; a brigade of four squadrons of royal caribineers; forty six regiments of foot, of two battalions each, of which thirty three are Spanish regiments; three are called those of Ireland, Hibernia, & Ultonia, of which all the officers are Irish Roman catholics; two Italian, four Walloon, and four Swiss regiments; a regiment of artillery of four battalions, and a regiment of engineers. There are also forty two regiments of provincial militia, each of a single battalion; forty six companies of invalids, and one hundred and twenty nine companies of city militia. The cavalry consists of fourteen regiments of four squadrons each, and eight regiments of dragoons.

Extract of a letter from Genoa, dated April 29.

"The day before yesterday a French vessel brought an order for the consul of that nation here to stop all the French sailors, and send them to Toulon to man the fleet there. The same vessel is charged with the same commission to all the French consuls at every port in the Mediterranean."

By all accounts, the merchants are very full of orders for goods for America, but all of them on condition of the late acts being repealed. Many of the letters which accompany those orders are full of complaints against the restrictions laid on commerce.

Doctor Plenius, of Vienna, hath disclosed to the ministers from England and Holland, with the consent of the empress queen, a secret, of his invention, for the preservation of wood from being destroyed by the worm, both on land and at sea; a trial is to be made of it in both countries.

Extract of a letter from Paris, dated May 19.

There is living at the workhouse at Cumberwell, in Surry, a woman named Jones, aged 125 years, who remembers her being at service when king Charles the second was crowned in 1660, and at this time enjoys her perfect senses. What is full as observable is, that the nurse who attends her is 101.

June 1. A number of affidavits, tending to shew that the skirmishes at Lexington was occasioned by the militrry first firing upon the provincial troops, are inserted in the London papers by Mr. Lee, agent for the house of representatives of the Massachusetts Bay, and the originals are said to be lodged with the lord mayor of London.

The famous Alexander Fordyce met an acquaintance in the street yesterday, and conversing on the late engagement in America between the provincials and general Gage's army, under the command of lord Percy, he with true Caledonian confidence asserted, that he would bring twenty people to prove that the whole account was a lie, though there is but one person in England who was in the province of Massachusetts Bay at the time the engagement happened.

From the king's troops having first fired on the Americans, and thus designedly commenced hostilities, there is every apparent reason to conclude that the private instructions to the troops are to shed blood enough.

The naval armament lately fitted out consists of 13 sail of the line, on board of which there are embarked 9500 of the best troops Spain can boast. There is also one regiment of cavalry. The ships are balasted with bricks. Above 200 bricklayers, and an equal number of carpenters, are also embarked for the service of this expedition.

Lord North has certainly eloped from England, but where to is not certainly known; though probably to the lower regions, for fresh instructions from his old companion Beelzebub.

Extract of a letter from Charleſtown, in South Carolina, to a gentleman in London, dated March 7.

"I do aſſure you I am not now near ſo ſtrenuous for America as when I left London. I am far, however, from being able to judge of the ſtate of the continent in general; but ſure I am this province cannot long ſubſiſt without a free trade, and a mutual dependence on the mother country. Many articles which Great Britain furniſhes are now become very ſcarce; rice and indigo, the grand ſtaple of our commerce, are a drug.

"Before the non-exportation ſcheme took effect, you would have been ſurprized to ſee the number of ſhips in our harbour, and the trade carried on in the town; in ſhort, on my arrival, I obſerved as much hurry and buſtle as in the ſtreets of London, and I could not but admire the livelineſs of the people; but the contraſt is now viſible; their tempers are ſoured; their fortunes, for want of trade, conſuming faſt. A train of conſequences muſt inevitably enſue, which, in my opinion, they will not be able to retrieve in the ſpace of a dozen years. It is the wiſh, therefore, of the wiſe and ſober, that a ſpeedy reconciliation with the mother country may be effected; but as this province has borne ſo high a part in their oppoſition to government, they are unwilling to give out till the terms offered become general."

Some of the lords of the admiralty, it is ſaid, are ſent for, by expreſs, to come immediately to town on very urgent buſineſs.

The following naval expeditions are ſaid to be at length reſolved on: A commodore, with three ſhips of the line, and two frigates, for the coaſt of Guinea; an admiral, with five ſail of the line, and three frigates, for Newfoundland; an admiral, with ſix line of battle ſhips, for the Eaſt Indies, to touch at the Spaniſh Philippines; a commodore in the Mediterranean; and another to reinforce the ſhips already on the Weſt India ſtation.

The Dutch are uncommonly aſſiduous in fitting out ſix frigates, of 36 guns each, which are to carry twelve months proviſions. Their deſtination is variouſly related.

Orders are ſtuck up at the war office that all perſons who accept of commiſſions in any of his majeſty's foreign garriſons will be expected, in future, to reſide where their ſeveral corps are quartered.

Yeſterday morning the Romney man of war, commanded by admiral Duff, ſailed from Spithead for Newfoundland.

The guardſhips at Portſmouth and Spithead are now manning with their full compliment of ſeamen and marines.

Four more regiments, we hear, will be ordered forthwith to America, and a part of the militia is to be embodied.

Extract of a letter from Stockholm, dated May 19.

"The town of Philipſtadt, in Weſtmoreland, is entirely burnt down, together with all the magazines of corn. The king's voyage to Finland, which was delayed till the coaſt was free from ice, will embark here, attended by the two ſenators, counts Ulrich Scheffer and Liewen, and the chamberlains Taube, Poſſe, Ehrenſward, and Oxenſtierna."

On Wedneſday orders were given for the tranſports now fitting out in the river to be ſent round to Cork for the embarkation of three regiments of foot for North America.

It is now ſaid that the ſhip that brought the printed account of the ſquabble at Boſton was going to the Mediterranean for a cargo, and was all of a ſudden engaged by ſome merchants to go to England with diſpatches, as they called them.

Yeſterday arrived at Portſmouth two Ruſſian men of war from the Mediterranean, under the command of admiral Baſball.

The ſame day ſome diſpatches arrived at lord Rochford's office from the earl of Grantham, his majeſty's ambaſſador at Madrid.

June 8. It was yeſterday reported that ſome of the inhabitants of Boſton, finding themſelves debarred from going out of the town, had ſet fire to ſeveral houſes in different parts of it.

Advice is ſaid to be received from Boſton that a number of people under arms had deſtroyed his majeſty's cuſtom houſe at Gaſpee Bay, at the mouth of the river Saint Lawrence, in the province of Quebec.

Two ſhips freight, with ſalt proviſions for the troops at Boſton, have been taken by the provincials.

Captain Seton, from Saint Kitts, who arrived on Saturday, ſpoke with a ſchooner from Beverly, near Salem, that ſailed from thence the 30th of April. The captain of which confirmed the account of an engagement on the 19th, but ſays the numbers killed were 235 regulars, and 39 provincials.

Extract of a letter from Portſmouth, dated June 2.

"On Saturday and Sunday three expreſſes arrived here from the admiralty with orders for ſix ſhips of the line to be fitted out for ſervice immediately, and for the Madrid, lieutenant Brandy, to ſail with diſpatches with the utmoſt expedition. Lieutenant Brandy proceeded to ſea on Tueſday, and various are the reports of her deſtination; ſome ſay to Gibraltar, others to Jamaica, and others to the French coaſts.

General Gage's troops are very ſickly, inſomuch that all the hoſpitals in Boſton are full of them. Their ſickneſs is ſaid to be owing to their drinking very freely of new rum, with which they have been ſupplied by the inhabitants.

They write from Plymouth that the encouragement given for ſailors to enter into his majeſty's ſervice not anſwering the intended purpoſe, preſs warrents are hourly expected there, when it is not doubted but a great number of able bodied ſailors may ſoon be got, who are now lurking about the country rather than go on board any of his majeſty's ſhips.

Orders are ſaid to have been ſent from the war office to the commanders in Scotland and Ireland to grant no furlows to private men or officers till further notice.

By the beſt accounts it does not appear that the Americans are in poſſeſſion of more than forty pieces of cannon, of which not more than twenty are fit for ſervice.

To-morrow, after the levee is over, a council is ſummoned to meet at Saint James's, ſaid to be on the laſt diſpatches from America, France, and Ireland.

Orders, we hear, have been iſſued for an enquiry to be made into the muſter rolls of the ſeveral regiments to aſcertain the number of each, and to know whether they have now their full complement of men, that if they have not, they may be filled with all expedition.

When the laſt packet left Calais two large veſſels were loaded with firelocks and ammunition, but what place they were deſtined for was not known. It is ſhrewdly imagined they are for the uſe of America.

Colonel Dalrymple is ſhortly going to America with diſpatches.

They write from Breſt that two men of war of the line and a frigate are ſailed from that port on a ſecret expedition; they are victualled and ſtored for twelve months.

The following intelligence was yeſterday morning received by a merchant in the city from his correſpondents at the Hague: "At a full aſſembly of the ſenate, orders were given for the fleet of ſix men of war, lying in the port of Harlem, to ſail with all poſſible diſpatch for the Weſt Indies."

There are letters and prints by the Quaro, Carleton, which is arrived at Falmouth from Salem, which confirm all the accounts that have been received of the action between the king's troops and the Boſtonians, and add that ſeveral ſmall ſkirmiſhes have happened ſince in favour of the latter.

The captain of a veſſel from the Weſt Indies was brought to the 19th ult. at ſea, by a ſquadron of ſeven men of war, who detained him a whole day, and, after breaking open a number of letters, ſuffered him to proceed on his voyage.

Private letters from Paris aſſert that the king of Pruſſia was lately there incog. and, after a ſtay of three days, ſuddenly diſappeared, which has occaſioned much ſpeculation amongſt the politicians.

Advices are received at Paris that the French have ſuſtained a loſs of three men of war, and upwards of 800 ſeamen, in a hurricane at the iſle of Bourbon, in the Eaſt Indies.

It is affirmed that the riots in France are much exaggerated with a view to draw off the attention of our court from the very formidable armaments now going on at Breſt, Rochfort, and Toulon.

It is ſaid that the French court has repeated the moſt ſolemn aſſurances that they have not any hoſtile deſigns againſt this kingdom.

The emiſſaries and tools of adminiſtration are buſy in repreſenting the news of an engagement in America as a mere fiction. In order to carry on their falſification with more efficacy, they do not ſtick to ſay that captain Derby has abſolutely abſented himſelf, as conſcious of having deceived the public, when it is well known that he daily frequents the Boſton or New England coffeehouſe, behind the exchange. But what ſhall we ſay to Mr. Lee, the agent of Maſſachuſetts Bay, who communicated the advice? He is reſponſible to his employers and the public for his conduct. And further, what muſt we think of the lord mayor of London, who admitted the affidavits relating to this melancholy affair into his office, as authentic record or verification of it? No lord mayor of common abilities would, without ſufficient grounds, take notice of ſuch oaths. A man of Wilkes's ſuperior underſtanding cannot be ſuppoſed to become the dupe of falſe and forged intelligence.

June 10. They write from Jamaica that a conſiderable fleet of French men of war has lately arrived in that part of the world from Breſt and Toulon; that they have troops on board, beſides bombs, mortars, &c. and ſeemed to be ſteering for ſome of the French iſlands to land their men, who were in a very ſickly condition.

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, dated May 15, at 5 o'clock.

"This morning 4 Spaniſh ſhips of the line, commanded by a rear admiral, 9 frigates, ſeveral cheſnes, and 100 ſail of tranſports, were ſeen to paſs the ſtreights, from Cadiz, bound to Carthagena.

It was laſt night very current that an expreſs was juſt arrived from general Gage, deſiring, with all expedition, a reinforcement of 500 men at leaſt, whom he recommends to be accoutred in the manner of the Highland regiment. He alſo deſires a draught from the train of artillery, with ſome field pieces.

At a ſpecial meeting this day of ſeveral members of the conſtitutional ſociety, a gentleman propoſed that a ſubſcription ſhould be immediately entered into, by ſuch members preſent as might approve the purpoſe, for raiſing a ſum of money, to be applied to the relief of the widows, orphans, and aged parents, of our beloved Americans.

CAMBRIDGE, July 21.

LAST Saturday the ſeveral regiments quartered in this town being aſſembled upon the parade, the reverend doctor Langdon, preſident of the college, read to them "a declaration by the repreſentatives of the united colonies of North America, now met in general congreſs at Philadelphia, ſetting forth the cauſes and neceſſity of their taking up arms." It was received with great applauſe, and the approbation of the army, with that of a great number of other people, and was immediately announced by three huzzas. His excellency the general, with ſeveral other general officers, &c. were preſent on the occaſion.

A gentleman has favoured us with the following account of the declaration being read upon Proſpect Hill.——"Laſt Tueſday morning, according to orders iſſued the day before by major general Putnam, all the continental troops under his immediate command aſſembled on Proſpect Hill, when the declaration of the continental congreſs was read, after which an animated and pathetic addreſs to the army was made by the reverend Mr. Leonard, chaplain to general Putnam's regiment, and ſucceeded by a pertinent prayer; when general Putnam gave the ſignal, and the whole army ſhouted their loud AMEN by three cheers, immediately upon which a cannon was fired from the fort, and the ſtandard lately ſent to general Putnam was exhibited flouriſhing in the air, bearing on one ſide this motto:

AN APPEAL TO HEAVEN!

and on the other ſide,

QUI TRANSTULIT SUSTINET.

The whole was conducted with the utmoſt decency, good order, and regularity, and to the univerſal acceptance of all preſent; and the Philiſtines on Bunker's hill heard the ſhouts of the Iſraelites, and, being very fearful, paraded themſelves in battle array."

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.

LAST Tueſday and Wedneſday a large detachment from the camp at Harlem, near New York, conſiſting of about 1000 men, under the command of colonel Waterbury, marched for Albany. It is ſaid they are intended as a reinforcement of Ticonderoga, where major general Schuyler commands.

The ſhips which lately ſailed out of Boſton are ſaid to be tranſports bound to Nova Scotia, &c. for proviſions and forage.

The Boſton light-houſe is deſtroyed, the oil being firſt taken out; the ſtakes are pulled up, which were placed to direct the paſſage for veſſels.

Extract of a letter from Cambridge, dated July 12.

"The day before yeſterday we went to Chelſea, famous for the battle of Noddle Iſland near to it. While we were on Powder Horn hill, back of Chelſea, we ſaw a ſkirmiſh between a party of our people (120 in number) who went in whale boats to an iſland about 12 miles from Boſton, and burnt a large quantity of hay, which was put up into bundles by the regulars, and intended to be ſent to Boſton for their horſes. A great number of marines, in ſchooners, men of war's boats, and two ſhips of war, kept up a conſtant fire on our men, while they remained on the iſland; but this did not prevent them from deſtroying the hay. The ſchooner and boats endeavoured to cut off their retreat, which brought on a very warm engagement, in which we had one killed, and one wounded. The loſs of the regulars is not known, but ſuppoſed to be conſiderable, as they were drove off ſeveral times, and finally obliged to retire, which would not have been the caſe if they had not loſt ſome men. Yeſterday we ſpent in Roxbury. While there, we were amuſed with a heavy fire of cannon and mortars from the lines of the regulars on the neck, and from one of their floating batteries, againſt 200 of our men, who were throwing up a breaſt-work in front of the George tavern on the ſame neck, and within a few rods of the regulars advance guard; our people kept on their work, and never returned a ſhot. Three bombs burſt near our men without injuring one of them; moſt of the cannon ſhot were taken up and brought to the general. It is diverting to ſee our people contending for the balls as they roll along. One circumſtance much to their reputation I muſt mention. During a ſevere cannonade at Roxbury laſt week, a bomb 13 inches diameter fell within our line, and burnt furiouſly; upon which four of our artillery men ran up, and one kicked out the fuſe, and ſaved the bomb, and, in all probability, ſome lives; a ſtroke of heroiſm worthy of record."

Inſtructions for the officers of the ſeveral regiments of Maſſachuſetts Bay forces, who are immediately to go upon the recruiting ſervice.

YOU are not to enliſt any deſerter from the miniſterial army, nor any ſtroller, negro, or vagabond, or perſon ſuſpected to be an enemy to the liberty of America, nor any under 18 years of age. As the cauſe is the beſt that can engage men of courage and principle to take up arms, ſo it is expected that none but ſuch will be accepted by the recruiting officers. The pay, proviſion, &c. being ſo ample, it is not doubted but the officers ſent upon this ſervice will, without delay, compleat their reſpective corps, and march their men forthwith to camp.

You are not to enliſt any perſon who is not an American born, unleſs ſuch perſon has a wife and family, and is a ſettled reſident in this country.

The perſons you enliſt muſt be provided with good and compleat arms.

A New York paper of July 27 ſays: "Captain George M'Arey, who came paſſenger in the brig Frankland, from St. Euſtatia, in 14 days, which veſſel he left at Sandy Hook yeſterday morning, relates, that two days before he ſailed a New England ſloop arrived in that road, who was in company with a Bermuda veſſel that went to Antigua, where they fell in with a ſhip bound from London to Jamaica, 18 days out, who informed them that there was a great diſturbance in England, that lord North had fled to France, the parliament houſe pulled down by the populace, and that the lord mayor, Mr. Burke, and governor Johnſton, headed the populace, and found out a great deal of bribery and corruption in the laſt parliament."

Extract of a letter from Cambridge, dated July 27.

"Captain Darby arrived in England in 27 days from Salem. When the accouuts he carried of the battle were publiſhed, lord North was thunder-ſtruck at the ſight. Lord Dartmouth ſent for captain Darby, with impatience to ſee him; but he was adviſed not to put himſelf in their power. The people were much ſurprized at the account, the merchants diſtreſſed on account of their property. Parliament had been but two days prorogued, and it was expected would be called again ſoon. Every thing was in a great ferment. Adminiſtration had given out that New York had deſerted the other colonies; which report captain Darby could not contradict, and that a general diſunion would take place. For this report, the conduct of your aſſembly gave too much ground. Captain Darby's veſſel plied on and off for him, and never went into any harbour, nor was it known in what part of England he landed. General Gage's diſpatch veſſel ſailed from England four days before captain Darby."

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman in North Carolina to his friend in this city.

"I have ſnatched this opportunity, as I could not do leſs, in order to give you ſome account of the convulſions of North Carolina. Immediately upon my arrival in this province, there was an expedition on foot among the people in order to inveſt themſelves of Fort Johnſon, where his majeſty's ſhip of war the Cruizer now lies, with governor Martin on board. Upon finding the people ſo hearty in this cauſe, I was rouſed by the beat of drum, as a friend to my country, to embark with them upon this glorious deſign, and accordingly joined the troops, and marched down, under the command of colonel John Aſhe; but when the governor heard of our intentions, he immediately diſmantled the Fort, by ſtowing the guns from off the Amberzeer, where they now lie, under cover of the man of war. We then were determined to deſtroy the Fort and all its buildings, to prevent its being a ſubterfuge for future villains, and accordingly put this ſcheme in execution, by burning every houſe." near Appamattax river, in the lower end of Buckingham, with 1500 or 2000 acres of good land, which produces fine tobacco, hemp, wheat, &c. The houses are new, and the best I have seen in the county. A larger and better garden, I believe is not in the colony, and on the land are several hundred fruit trees, of the best kinds; many of which were brought by water, to Richmond town, above 80 miles. On this tract is a large proportion of exceeding fine meadow land, with a fine fish-pond within 300 yards of the dwellinghouse, stored with various kinds of fine fish, sufficient for the use of a family the year round. In this neighbourhood is plenty of excellent venison; the air is so pure that I never knew an instance of any person having the ague and fever at Huntington. I have travelled through the most parts of Virginia, and have not seen any part that I would so soon live at as in this neighbourhood. If I sell this place, I shall live on part of the tract of land that has been advertised for some time past. I make no doubt but Appamattox river will be soon cleared, and then wheat will be carried as far as colonel Banister's mill, by Petersburg, for 4d. or 5d. per bushel. At this place I made 100 gallons of wine in 1772, and last year, if it had not been for the frost, I could have made 5 or 600 gallons, which quantity I expect to make this year. Huntington would be a pleasant and safe place for a gentleman to retreat to, in the horrors of a civil war, or in the sickly months, which are in many parts of the lowlands.

"What is honour, grandeur, wealth?
"All fleeting; nothing's without health."

I hope any gentleman inclinable to purchase will visit the premises this summer. I will also sell the tract of rich land, which I advertised in Albemarle for some time, very cheap; that is, for half its value.
ANTHONY WINSTON.

RUN away from the subscriber, in Pittsylvania, the 10th of April last, two convict servant men: WILLIAM WILMORE is an Englishman, a weaver by trade, a short, well made man, of a fresh complexion, has short black hair, inclinable to curl, is given much to flattery and laughter, and has lost one thumb. He had on a reddish turned cloth jacket, and a pair of nankeen breeches. The other is an Irishman, with black hair and large black beard, is a short fellow, remarkably thick in his shape, and is a sailor. He had on a white plains jacket, and a pair of black knit breeches. Whoever shall take up the said servants, and contrive so that the owner may get them again, shall receive TEN POUNDS reward.
3* JOHN MARR.

FIVE POUNDS REWARD.

RAN away from the subscriber, about six days before Christmas, a negro man, named EMMANUEL, formerly the property of colonel Philip Rootes, of a yellowish complexion, about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, with a scar on his left hand, where the thumb joins, and has an effeminate voice. I am afraid he has got on board some vessel. Any person who will take up the said fellow, and deliver him to me, at Charlottsville town, in Albemarle, or to Mr. Peter Clarkson, at Carr's Lowgrounds, shall receive the above reward, besides what the law allows. 3* THOMAS CARR.

RUN away from the subscriber, in Spotsylvania, the 20th of May, a convict servant man, named GEORGE NEWTON, a farmer, born in Yorkshire, and imported in the Justitia this spring, a stout man, about 6 feet high, much freckled, has a very red beard, and walks clumsily. I am informed he has a scar on the fore part of his head, and some scars on his left arm, which he says was occasioned by shot. He has been in some office about the customhouse in London. He took with him two oznabrig shirts, almost new, one of them died of a purple colour, a pair of oznabrig trowsers, rather too small for him, a felt hat, bound, a pair of old country shoes, a jacket without sleeves, much worn, a Dutch blanket, a white linen shirt, a stock, and brass stock buckle, a pair of new worsted hose, mixed brown and white, and one pair of white yarn stockings. I suspect he has other clothes with him. He also took away with him a negro man, named GEORGE, about 5 feet 3 inches high, well made, and understands working in stone and wood; his fore teeth in the upper jaw is a good deal worn; the finger next to his little finger, on his left hand, is stiff in the first joint, occasioned by a cut, and when the others are shut, stands out; he has lost part of a toe, and, as well as I remember, it is the toe next his great toe, and on the left foot. He took with him some oznabrig shirts, a kersey jacket, with yellow metal buttons, a pair of white yarn stockings, a blanket, a pair of country made shoes, with some other clothes. They say they intend getting on board some ship, but I suspect they will endeavour getting on board the man of war. All masters of vessels, or other persons, are forewarned from harbouring or taking them on board. I will give FIVE POUNDS reward for both, or THREE POUNDS for Newton, and FORTY SHILLINGS for George, besides what the law allows, if conveyed to me, near Fredericksburg, or FORTY SHILLINGS each if secured in any gaol, so that I get them again. If they are not well secured they will make their escapes, being both cunning, artful fellows.
JAMES TUTT.

N. B. I suspect a negro man, named Tim, belonging to the honourable John Tayloe, is gone off with them.

One half the purchase money to be paid on the sale, the remainder in twelve months, giving security.
t d f NICHOLAS REAGAN, executor.

TO BE SOLD, IN AMHERST COUNTY,

Mr. Gabriel Penn, who lives near the land, is authorized to bargain for it, and will shew it to any persons inclinable to purchase.
t f CARTER BRAXTON.

FIFTY DOLLARS REWARD.

RUN away from the subscriber, in Loudoun, on the 14th of May, two Irish convict servants, viz. FRANCIS IRWIN, a stout fellow, about 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, with a sandy complexion, short curled hair, thin visage, and grey eyes; he has two large upper teeth before, a remarkable hoarse voice, and is by trade a blacksmith. MICHAEL LANE, lately from Ireland, is about 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, with a dark complexion, short dark hair, and black eyes. They had on, and took with them, the following articles: Two check, two oznabrig, and some white shirts, two pair of oznabrig trowsers, one black and one red and white silk handkerchiefs, a fine hat, bound with velvet, with a band of the same, a coarse ditto, bound with ferret, one pair of gray thread and some worsted stockings, a pair of stitched pumps, with long quarters, one pair of new and one of old shoes, a sailor's blue jacket, and one knit ditto, a light coloured cloth coat, patched at the elbows, a half worn janes ditto, lined with brown holland, a gray surtout, and one brown ditto, with a velvet cape, a pair of leather breeches, two motly coloured rugs, one blanket, and a smooth bored gun. They also took with them two mares: One of them is a bright bay, about 15 hands high, shod all round, paces, trots, and gallops, but is most accustomed to trotting, has two remarkable sores, one on each side of her back, near the hind part of the saddle. The other mare is of a dark brown, about 13 hands high, shod before, and her mane hangs to the left side. Whoever secures them in any gaol, so that I may get them again, shall receive TWENTY DOLLARS for each, and TEN DOLLARS for the mares, besides reasonable charges, if brought home.

 All owners of ferries are requested to take particular notice, as it is expected they will make towards New York or Boston.
SAMUEL CANBY.

To be RENTED for any term of years, not exceeding fourteen, and entered upon next November,

THE FERRY and HOUSES opposite to Alexandria, either with or without an adjoining, improved plantation, the land whereof is in general good, with a large quantity of meadow ground. This being a place much frequented, and likely to become daily more so, with the daily rising importance of Alexandria, renders it peculiarly fit for either a tavern or a place of trade, or both. The buildings now upon it, excepting a new house intended for a kitchen, are but indifferent; it is therefore proposed that the tenant shall erect such as he may judge necessary; for which a proper abatement will be made in the rent. For terms apply to Daniel Dulany, junior, esquire, attorney at law in Annapolis, or to John Addison, esquire, and the reverend Jonathan Boucher, near the premises. c*

For SALE, in CHESTERFIELD county,

A TRACT of LAND, lying on Appomattox river, about 3 miles below Petersburg, containing 307 acres, 50 of which are very valuable marsh and meadow land, the residue good high land, well calculated for a farm. There is on this land a good dwellinghouse, outhouses, barns, and all other necessary buildings, very fine orchards, and other valuable improvements. The situation is exceedingly beautiful and healthy. Also a tract of land, lying on the same river, in the lower part of Amelia county, containing 540 acres, 200 of which are low grounds; the whole tract equal in goodness to any land in the colony, the high land lies level, and produces fine crops of tobacco, wheat, and corn; it is well known by the name of Goose Island; the buildings and other improvements are valuable, and the plantation in fine order; it will work 12 or 15 hands to advantage. Both or either of these tracts of land will be sold on any time of credit not exceeding 7 years, the purchaser giving bond with approved security, and paying interest from the date of the bond. t f ROBERT KENNON.

FOR SALE,

NINE hundred and forty acres of valuable land, lying on both sides of Contrary River, in Louisa, with three plantations thereon, two of which has sufficient houses for overseers and negroes; the other is improved with all necessary buildings, and orchards of all kinds, fit for the reception of a gentleman, the houses being finished in the best manner This tract is well timbered and watered, lies within 32 miles of Fredericksburg, and 43 of Page's warehouse; there are at least 400 acres of low grounds, of the best soil, 300 of which are now to cut. The three plantations are under good fences, and in good order to work 12 or 15 hands. Robert Fleming, John Massey, and John Lain, are now in possession of the plantations, who will shew the land to any person inclinable to purchase, and Major Thomas Johnson will agree with them for the price. The above tract is esteemed the most valuable in Louisa for growing corn, wheat, or tobacco, and situated in the best range for stock of any below the great mountains. (tf 1*)

FOR SALE, AND VERY CHEAP,

A PLANTATION in good order for cropping, none of the land having been cleared above six years, with all necessary houses, quite new, together with 1500 acres of exceeding rich land, the soil of which is so good that it will bring large tobacco for five or six years without dung. I have made on this plantation above three thousand pounds of tobacco per share. The place is very healthy, and has a fine range for stock. This land lies in the lower end of Buckingham county, near to Appomattox river, on each side of Great Ducker's and Mayo creeks. Tobacco has been carried above this land near to Petersburg by water, and last month, in the dry weather, two canoe loads of wheat were carried near to Petersburg, and the canoes brought back; they were loaded but a little below this land. I make no doubt but Appomattox river will be soon cleared, and then the expence of sending wheat, tobacco, &c. will be trifling. Any person inclinable to purchase will see, by the produce of the land, that it is exceeding rich. I really do not know any better high land in the colony. This tract of land is well timbered, and has excellent water on it. I do not know a better place for a merchant mill than is on Ducker's creek. People are going much on raising wheat in these parts, and a good mill would be very advantageous to the owner. Also another tract of land of 826 acres, in Albemarle county, I believe about ten miles from the courthouse, joining Mr. James Harris and the quarters of Mr. John Winston. On this land is a small plantation, a good apple orchard, &c. The land is good, and my price so low, that I am convinced any person who viewed either of the above tracts of land would not hesitate to give the price I shall ask. Neither of these tracts are under any incumbrance whatsoever. A reasonable time of payment will be allowed.
